Ive done research and the best suggestion i have heard was Java Servlets. Im looking for a web server specifically that can support Java and supports multiple HTTP requests at the same time in the same thread. I dont want to have to worry about code for the server. I have tried tomcat but my program when submitted takes a LONG time. I have tried running the other servlet type I seen in tutorials but most of them crash when im going to the servlet. A: Check out Jetty it does support Servlets with instance sharing and is server side configurable. It can be deployed as an standalone server, a servlet container, embedded in an application container
